"The Glorious Fourth"

Glory, like hats and skirts seem to change style, and lasts just about as long. July fourth may still be the birthday of our nation, but we don't seem to get as "glorious" on the fourth as we used to, when out in some grove, or on some island there was the old fashioned picnic with its dance platform, the home made merry-go-round and some four or five lemonade stands where ice cream and cake could also be had, and there was plenty of old logs and brush piles to hide the "licker" under until we all got drunk enough not to care who saw it, and anyway, by that time it was getting pretty scarce and it was safer to carry it with us if we didn't want to get hi-jacked and have to drink water.

In those good old days, such evils as good roads, automobiles and the eighteenth amendment were not heard of, and the bunch of neighborhood fighters could always be depended upon to be in home territory within the twelve-mile limit to furnish plenty of patriotism, and usually all would be well until about three P. M. when some big bruiser would pick out some guy that he thought he could lick and start picking at him and following him around, and when they got in the thickest of the crowd war started, and by the time that all the allied nations had gotten into action it was not safe for democrats, republicans or loggerheads, but the local paper generally reported that a "good time was had by all."

To be sure, there were headaches and bruised knuckles, but no paralysis, as no one was compelled to stand in the heat for from two to three hours while a bunch of "prominent citizens" or "distinguished orators" told us how Columbus crossed the Delaware or how Huey Long "discovered" Louisiana, and while I am not on any committee, and have no say in the matter, I would like to slip one little suggestion to those who are guilty, and that suggestion is--if punishment must be meted out to the grown-ups, don't take it out on the Boy Scouts and the little bunch of flower girls who have been marching all over town in the hot sun, by lining them up at attention or parade rest, or any other way right up in front where they have to stand for two hours while some guy orates about something the kiddies cannot understand and cannot get away from.

Recently, I was at one of these "patriotic" gatherings which was held in the afternoon, and after the Legion, Boy Scouts and about twenty five little girls had been marched all over town, they were lined up on a concrete walk and compelled to stand for perhaps an hour and a half while a whole mess of orators unbound. Of course, it was not so hard on the speakers as they could stop when they run down, but the poor kiddies, had to take it in relays, and finally one poor little Scout keeled over, but that did not convey a thing to the orator who continued to talk.

This weather is mighty hot, so let us not forget to turn the Scouts and other little kiddies loose before the orators get wound up as they will probably know more about it before the speaking than we do after, and while children may "cry for Castoria" I have never heard of one crying for castor oil or hot air.

This is going to be a mighty dry Fourth, as the wets tell us there is absolutely no kick in the 32 and that the bootleggers have all vanished since the beer came, so how are we going to work up any patriotism? Of course, there may be people who really enjoy standing in the heat for an hour or two while some one talks but I think it should be left to the kiddies to decide for themselves, and I am thinking that their decision will be about the same as mine--the baseball game.

After July comes August, and it is a "fair" guess that there will be no dull moments, and with the depression on its way out something tells me that the biggest Fair will be in 1933 and I don't mean the one at Chicago either.

However, the Fair is not until August. In the meantime, don't forget to turn the "kiddies" loose before the orators get started on the "Glorious Fourth."

STATE 4-H CAMP

COUNTY AND STATE WET

Twenty Precincts of Thirty in County Vote Wet--West Marlinton Has Largest Dry Vote With Thornwood Having the Largest Majority

Pocahontas county, along with the state, last Tuesday, voted down prohibition, which has been in force in the state for a number of years.

Pocahontas county's vote was not as large as was expected for the repeal side of the ballot, and the dries were able to hold the wets to the small margin of 352 vote lead at the final count.

Of the 7048 voters registered in Pocahontas county, only 2930 went to the polls to vote, or forty-one and a fraction percent of the entire registration.

Thornwood in Greenbank district gave the largest majority wet votes as that of any other precinct in the county with a seven to one majority. Lobelia gave the largest majority for the dries, with approximately two and a half to one.

The vote for Pocahontas county, by precincts, is as follows:

Precinct	For	Against	Total
Droop Mountain	38	20	58
Beard	26	9	35
Seebert	26	28	54
Lobelia	24	61	85
Hillsboro	48	74	122
Millpoint	45	53	98
Mace	15	5	20
Alderny	34	26	60
Hannah	59	40	99
Woodrow	40	32	72
Buckeye	39	30	69
Cloverlick	54	28	82
Linwood	21	9	30
Edray	61	40	101
W. Marlinton	113	130	243
E. Marlinton	213	102	315
Minnehaha	47	19	66
E. Buckeye	16	15	31
Thorny Creek	10	5	15
Huntersville	36	56	92
Frost	51	73	124
Barlow	31	30	61
E. Cass	109	44	153
Hosterman	14	20	34
Boyer	27	42	69
Thornwood	28	4	32
Cass	122	59	181
Dunmore	65	33	98
Greenbank	81	117	198
Durbin	148	85	233
TOTALS	589	1224	2813

Although the rural folk of West Virginia stood staunchly by their prohibition principles, their votes were lost Tuesday in a smother of ballots that indicated West Virginia will be the fifteenth state to ratify national repeal.

More than half of the state's 2938 precincts gave the twenty-first amendment a majority of 55,961. In 1211 precincts the vote was 128,943 for repeal and 73,982 against.

Seventeen counties, most of them sparsely populated and all of them rural, turned in varying majorities for retention of the eighteenth amendment. The larger counties where the mines, steel mills, glass plants and other industries are located offered wet leads that rang as high as four to one.

Voting on prohibition for the first time since 1912 when it gave 92.99 majority for the state bone dry amendment, the panhandle state appeared headed for a complete right-about face. The election, however, will have no effect on the state prohibition law.

Not a county listed as industrial or as a large mining center was represented as a dry stronghold. Some of them are timber counties, others are located in the agricultural Ohio valley and the others are largely rural with a few mines in some of them. Lewis, Gilmer and Roane, in the heart of the oil and gas fields, also gave dry majorities.

West Virginia is the first state below the Mason-Dixon line to vote on repeal. Most of those counties that border on southern states voted wet, although Monroe was dry and there was a fairly close race in Mercer. Both of them border on Virginia, the "Old Dominion."

Rev. J. W. Whittenack Church of God evangelist from Roanoke, Va., will be here Thursday night June 29, to begin a revival at the Cummings Creek Church of God building. Every body is cordially invited to attend these good services.

Have you noticed the scarcity of potato bugs this year? Just a few put in their pesky appearance on some volunteer vines in my garden, and a dash or two of arsenate of lead discouraged these promptly. A number of observers of natural phenomena have commented to me on the failure that would eat up every crop left unsprayed and unprotected. Last year from all parts of the county people

Ginger, deceased whether due or not, are notified to exhibit the same with the voucher thereof, legally verified, to the undersigned at his office in the Town of Marlinton, West Virginia, on or before the 29th day of December, 1933; otherwise they may by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate. All beneficiaries of said estate are notified to be present on said day to protect their interests.

Given under my hand this 28th day of June, 1933.
P. T. Ward, Commissioner of County of Pocahontas, W. Va.

sent to this office chinch bugs which fed upon the soft potato bugs, by sticking a sharp bill into it and sucking him dry. That attack of course, reduced the number some, but certainly to no great extent. Enough of those evil smelling, beetle eating bugs to extirpate the potato bug would have been a plague equal to and perhaps exceeding the one they destroy. Maybe it was the winter that checked them out this year, and maybe it was the lady bug who should have the credit. This little harsh red beetle feeds upon the eggs of the Colorado potato beetle. Last year lady bugs were here in great numbers and I observed them eating the potato bug eggs a number of times.
